

KEYNOTES + CASE STUDIES

Stories of challenge, possibility, purpose and outcome.

Our keynote and case-studies program are led by Jason Caldwell. Jason Caldwell is an adventurer, leadership trainer, and expert storyteller.

We believe that the retelling of stories in context to organizational challenges is one of the most effective tools available in driving alignment and understanding. Our speaking programs aim to inspire and create visions of possibility. We know great leaders are ones that focus on the process much more than the outcome, knowing that the outcome is inevitable if the process is executed correctly.

Jason tells his stories in a way that allows his audience to deconstruct and internalize the lessons pulled from it for their own personal development. Our keynote programs can also be structured to further mine the metaphors of any story by facilitating breakout sessions that encourage members of these small groups to consider the stories they have to tell, and how the people they lead can benefit from them.

Beyond an experience

Learning from experience

Our speaking programs all begin from our experiences. Our goal is to re-live, retell and capture the real learning lessons from any experience and distill it into concrete thoughts and examples that are useful for inspiring and driving high performing leaders and teams.

Adventure and academics

Our adventures are amazing feats on their own, but their true value is only realized when discussed and analyzed in context to real-world organizational needs and applications. Our goal is that every adventure story told is balanced with thoughtful discussion and breakdown that seeks to figure out the “why” behind the events and team-dynamics that unfolded.

With incredible insight and noteworthy humility, Jason Caldwell distills his daunting experiences into compelling and impactful lessons for leaders in today's complex and volatile world. His stories and the meaningful morals they relate will uplift and equip anyone to better navigate their own turbulent teams and leadership challenges."
